

Aron Levine

Head of Consumer Banking and Merrill Edge

Aron Levine leads a team of more than 40,000 employees responsible for helping with the financial needs of Bank of America's Consumer Banking and Merrill Edge[®] investment clients. Levine and his leadership team are focused on ensuring the organization provides an industry-leading client experience, including building and developing talent to effectively deliver solutions based on clients' priorities and helping to drive responsible growth through effective risk management.

The team, located across approximately 4,500 Bank of America financial centers and call centers, offers clients insight on a wide range of financial products and services designed to support their banking, lending, small business and investment planning needs.

In addition, Levine leads the management and delivery of Merrill Edge[®], which helps clients pursue their financial goals by seamlessly providing access to the investment insights of Merrill Lynch and the banking convenience of Bank of America. Merrill Edge enables clients to view and manage their banking and investment accounts with a single sign-on through advanced online and mobile platforms. Clients can also connect with licensed Merrill Edge Financial Solutions Advisors[™], either in select financial center locations or over the phone.

Levine joined the company through Fleet Financial Group in 1993 and has held leadership roles in Commercial Real Estate Banking, Marketing, Corporate Strategy, and Global Wealth Management.

He proudly serves as a national trustee and southeast region vice chair for the Boys and Girls Clubs of America.

Levine graduated from the University of Rochester with a degree in both economics and history.
